Tales from the dark side of Urban Fantasy

Writer Guest of Honor:

Patricia Briggs

Patty's biography says; "The Tri-Cities I lived in was dusty, hot and a little dirty around the edges. Add a little imagination and a dash of magic, and suddenly it's got werewolves, and fae, and a lone coyote-woman. The transformation is infectious. Other people look around them, and wonder if that old house with the boarded up windows might hold a nest of vampires. In an instant the magic is back; and where there's magic, dreams can take root."

This year Rustycon is looking for some magic and dreams to take root. What will it be: Werewolves, Werecoyotes, Vampires, and others who they claim are just another urban legend?

Maybe this will be the year when the magic will carry you off again to that place where everything and everyone is wondrous!

How about joining us in January to experience the magic, the dreams and the wonder?

Join us at Rustycon!

January 14-16, 2011

Rustycon is an annual science fiction and fantasy convention, held locally in the greater Seattle region, with approximately 400 – 500 people in attendance. We have multiple tracks of programming, a dealers room, an art show, human services (which includes a green room for our invited guests), and a hospitality room for the general membership. As a focal point for the SF/F community, Rustycon has something to offer all discerning fans.
